ALFRED HOMANN

AH OUTDOOR SERIES

Carl Hansen & Søn presents AH Outdoor Series – a stackable outdoor collection that combines rigorous design with soft details, designed by Danish architect Alfred Homann.

Simplicity, clarity, and logic were the guiding design principles for Alfred Homann during the development of the AH Outdoor Series, where all superfluous details were eliminated in favor of a simple expression and high functionality. The series consists of eleven pieces of furniture, including dining tables and chairs, a bench, lounge tables and chairs and a lounger, all of which can be mixed and matched to fit individual needs.

The AH Outdoor Series features a rigorous aesthetic paired with Homann's sense of soft shapes – as evidenced in the beautifully curved armrests, backrests, and seats, where the braces elegantly grip the frame. These joints are meticulously polished by hand by the skilled craftsmen at Carl Hansen & Søn, to achieve a soft and tactile surface. All the tables and chairs can be stacked for ease of storage when not in use, exemplifying Homann's attention to detail and understanding of form and function.

Born in 1948, Alfred Homann was a multi-award-winning Danish architect and designer. He graduated as an architect from the Royal Danish Academy of Fine Arts in 1976 and after spending some years as a student working with different Danish and American Architects, he founded his own studio in 1978 in Copenhagen – 30 years old.

Simplicity, clarity, and logic were always the most important parameters for Homann, and his keen eye for details is evident in everything he designed. Homann created furniture and lighting, as well as architectural projects at museums, railway stations, private residences, and public buildings – everything with great precision and thoroughness.

In 1987, Homann established Homann Design Inc. in the United States from where he worked on different projects in addition to his Copenhagen studio. He travelled the world giving lectures and presentations in the USA, Japan, Russia, and Europe. Furthermore, Homann was acknowledged with multiple international awards during his career for both design and architecture – for example the Red Dot award, IF Product Design-Award, and a Brunel Award.

MATERIALS

The AH Outdoor Series is made of untreated, FSC™-certified teak. Teak is a hard, strong wood type, which is well-suited to changing climates, offering durability due to its high content of natural oils. Teak is also highly resistant to fungal attack, which is a major reason why teak is so suitable for outdoor furniture. As the teak is untreated, it patinates beautifully over time, gradually acquiring a silver-grey hue.

The series offers a high degree of comfort with and without cushions, which are made of the textile 'Agora Life' – a recycled, waterproof fabric finished with a fluorine free treatment that is more biodegradable.

“The Alfred Homann Outdoor Series has its very own expression and fits perfectly into our outdoor collection – between Bodil Kjær’s cubist Indoor-Outdoor Series and Børge Mogensen’s foldable outdoor furniture. In addition, the AH Outdoor Series meets specific needs for stackable furniture with high aesthetic value.”
